Sens trade Fisher for draft picks

► Senators get 2011 first-round draft pick and 2012 third-round pick in return for Fisher ► More trades likely as league deadline approaches: Commentators

CHRIS PIZZELLO/THE ASSOCIATED PRESS FILE

Fans are reacting with a mix of hope and sadness at news Ottawa Senators centre Mike Fisher has been traded to the Nashville Predators.

"I think it's a pretty huge loss that he will be leaving the Senators, seeing that he's a pretty good player and the fact that he's been around for such a long time. It's kind of sad," said Brendan Fitzgibbons, but he added, "It could help. Sometimes change is good."

Talk of the trade, announced Thursday afternoon, dominated the special afternoon broadcast, said The Team 1200's Sportscall host Lee Versage.

"I think people are a little bit shocked that it was him," said Versage. "More casual fans want the team to win but they like the player and are a little bit confused."

Still others wish Fisher well.

"He's done a lot of good things for the team," said John Knowles. "It's sad to see him go. Well good for him, I'm glad he's moving on. Nashville's got a great playoff run." ● SEAN MCKIBBON WITH FILES FROM JOE LOFARO

Man in custody for gun play

An Ottawa man faces 17 charges, including assault, uttering threats and reckless discharge of a firearm, after police arrested him twice in the early hours of Wednesday morning.

Ottawa police responded around 2 a.m. to a report of a man threatening and assaulting three others in the 300 block of Hunt Club Road. Police arrested and released the suspect on a promise to appear. Later, at about 5 a.m., the same man was arrested after a report of shots fired in the 600 block of Hunt Club.

Jonathan Laporte, 24, was scheduled to appear in court yesterday. ●METRO

$10K added to injury fight

- Funds will help Ottawa Hospital deliver program to distant schools
- Hospital Foundation still accepting donations through Feb. 15

JOE LOFARO
OTTAWA@METRONEWS.CA

Harnessing the power of social media, the Ottawa Hospital Foundation's Fundchange campaign has raised more than $10,000 in order to spread injury-prevention programs to more Ottawa teens.

"With our new money that we got, we're planning on going out and doing a little road show," said Barb Mews, injury-prevention co-ordinator at the Ottawa Hospital. "So we'll hopefully be able to use this to expand and go to the kids that weren't able to make it to our program."

The Prevent Alcohol and Risk-Related Trauma in Youth (P.A.R.T.Y.) program at the Ottawa Hospital educates area teens about the risks of alcohol and about how to prevent injury.

Word spread quickly about the program thanks to Facebook, Twitter and emails to the community, which eventually caught the eyes of Ottawa law firm Nelligan O'Brien Payne.

The firm made a $5,000 donation Monday, which was then matched by Telus, bringing the total to $10,000.

"This program sells itself," said Mews. "Everybody wants to come ... It's the field trip that they'll never forget."

P.A.R.T.Y. program

- 1 Forty-three schools in the Ottawa area have participated to date.
- 2 Teens hear of collisions, watch doctors perform a simulated trauma resuscitation, and hear a survivor's story.
- 3 About 700 Canadian teens die from injury each year, says the Smart Risk Foundation.

In the mood for love? Say it with Shakespeare

► Sweets and Sonnets raises funds for production of Antony and Cleopatra ► Shakespeare's Sonnet 18 (Shall I compare thee to a summer's day?) is most popular

On Valentine's Day a small army of thespians will be bringing a message of love to lucky romantics in Ottawa. A very small army. Two to be specific.

Members of the Ottawa Shakespeare troupe A Company of Fools will, for $69.99, deliver candy and recite a Shakespeare sonnet on bended knee, the Elizabethan equivalent of a singing telegram.

The recipient keeps the candy, a scroll with the sonnet printed on it and perhaps a slight grudge against the sender.

"Usually we ambush people at their place of work and give them a nice pleasant embarrassment in front of their friends," said AL Connors, who with fellow fool Scott Florence expects to deliver up to 150 sonnets in a Valentine's Day marathon.

The Fools will also woo your sweetie by phone, anywhere in North America, for $59.99, and there are plans to add Skype video calls to the repertoire, Connors said.

"That way they get to see the costume we're wearing and we get to see the look on their face."

Algonquin students got a breakdown of the recycled and biodegradable components of Ford vehicles yesterday from Dave Rossy of Lincoln Ford. The automaker's pioneering use of straw-reinforced plastics, they heard, reduces petroleum usage by some 20,000 and reduces CO2 emissions by 30,000 pounds per year. Other green materials Ford uses include soy-based polyurethane foams, post-consumer cotton from blue jeans, and recycled resins from detergent bottles, tires and battery casings.

Mubarak refuses to leave, hands powers to VP

- Mubarak says in speech he wants to 'protect' constitution
- Tears of disappointment, anger among protesters

Egypt's Hosni Mubarak refused to step down or leave the country and instead handed his powers to his vice-president Thursday, remaining president and ensuring regime control over the reform process. Stunned protesters in central Cairo who demand his ouster waved their shoes in contempt and shouted, "Leave, leave, leave."

The rapidly moving events raised the question of whether a rift had opened between Mubarak and the military command. Hours earlier, a council of the military's top generals announced it had stepped in to secure the country, and a senior commander announced to protesters in Tahrir Square that all their demands would soon be met, raising cries of victory that Mubarak was on his way out.

After Mubarak's speech, protest organizers called for the army to take action to oust him, and they vowed increased protests on Friday. Several hundred thousand had packed into Tahrir Square, ecstatic with expectation that Mubarak would announce his resignation in his nighttime address. Instead, they watched in shocked silence as he spoke, slapping their foreheads in anger and disbelief. Some broke into tears.

Around a 1,000 marched on the state television headquarters several blocks away, guarded by the military with barbed wire and tanks. "They are the liars," the crowd shouted, pointing at the building, chanting, "We won't leave, they will leave."

Rumours about ousted president Jean-Bertrand Aristide's return have many Haitians rushing to the airport in recent days after Aristide requested and received a new passport after his nearly seven-year exile in South Africa. Aristide's eager return shows the former slum priest remains a powerful symbol of hope for millions, even if others dread the return of instability Haiti suffered under his rule. ## FAR FEWER STUDENTS IN CANADIAN-BUILT AFGHAN SCHOOLS

Schools in Kandahar that were built or renovated on the Canadian government's dime have far fewer students than official enrolment numbers suggest, a Canadian Press investigation has found.

Unaccompanied visits to the schools where work has been completed lay bare the stark contrast between what appears on paper and the reality on the ground.

The government of Kandahar's school registry lists many thousands more students than there actually are in the classrooms of Canadian-funded schools across the province.

The findings call into question the efficacy of one of the Conservative government's legacy projects in southern Afghanistan.

Coastal living less healthy?

A new study suggests Canadians in low-income communities are twice as likely to have poor health if they live on the Atlantic or Pacific coasts.

The report was done by a researcher at St. Michael's Hospital in Toronto and is being published in this month's issue of Health and Place.

It found people in deprived neighbourhoods on the Atlantic coast were 20 per cent more likely to report poor health. The figure rose to 30 per cent on the Pacific coast — more than twice that in the Prairies and Central Canada.

Researcher Heather White says the study shows that where people live plays a big role in how much they are affected, adding that the rates of addiction and mental-health disorders are higher in coastal areas.

White says people on both coasts have less access to health care, fresh and affordable food, and gyms or exercise facilities.

'Try having your heart ripped out'

► Mom jailed for 14 years gets new trial in son's death

Tammy Marquardt tenderly hugged her five-month-old daughter on Thursday minutes after Ontario's top court granted her a new trial in the death of her toddler 17 years ago.

Then, stepping into the sunshine, Marquardt said it was "torture" being labelled a child killer on the strength of expert evidence from now-disgraced pathologist Charles Smith.

"Try having your heart ripped out and someone squeezing it right in front of your face," Marquardt said.

"Finally, the nightmare is coming to an end and I'm waking up."

It took the Ontario Court of Appeal just five minutes to conclude the 38-year-old mother had been the victim of a miscarriage of justice and quash her second-degree murder conviction.

In doing so, Justice Marc Rosenberg said the court recognized that Marquardt had been through a "terrible" ordeal.

"There are no real words for it. It's just a lot of pain and hurt that cannot be fixed," Marquardt said later.

She said she was looking forward to getting on with a life that includes her baby Tiffany and possibly the two sons authorities seized after she was charged in 1993.

The mother from Oshtemo, Ont., spent 14 years in jail after she was convicted in 1995 of killing her son, two-year-old Kenneth Wynne.

The Crown called her an impoverished, struggling young mother who killed her son in a moment of frustration.

Smith, who was stripped of his medical licence last week for professional misconduct and incompetence, testified persuasively that Kenneth was strangled or suffocated.

► Minister of Justice and Attorney General Rob Nicholson speaks Thursday during a news conference in Ottawa regarding Bill S-10.

Feds fire shots over crime bill

► Tories blast Ignatieff for not supporting legislation
 ► Grits answer back, accusing government of hiding costs

The battle lines were firmly drawn Thursday for a bitter federal election fight in which Conservatives and Liberals will be spitting vitriol at each other over who is tougher on crime.

With the possibility of a spring election still hanging over their collective heads, the Tories launched one of their toughest soft-on-crime offensives on the Opposition Liberals. The Liberals punched back, in effect saying, bring it on.

The heated sparring served as a preview of how law-and-order issues could play out on the campaign trail if the Tory minority is defeated and Canadians are drug crime. Nicholson, along with retired Ontario police chief-turned-Tory MP Julian Fantino, repeatedly called Ignatieff a “flip-flopper” on the issue.

“I think they have a lot of explaining to do to people who are very concerned about drug trafficking in this country,” Nicholson told a news conference.

But the Liberals immediately fired back, as the party’s public safety critic, Mark Holland, accused the government of hiding the true cost of the bill, which many groups — from churches, to health-care workers, to lawyers — also oppose. THE CANADIAN PRESS

Justice Minister Rob Nicholson blasted Liberal Leader Michael Ignatieff for deciding not to support a bill that would impose mandatory sentences for

Prison blues

The federal government's new tough-on-crime laws are going to mean more guards and more crowding in cell blocks, says the head of the prison system.

- Don Head, commissioner of the Correctional Service of Canada, says he can't release an overall estimate of the costs of all the proposed legislation. He did say he's going to have to hire 4,000 more people over the next two years.
- Most of the new people will be guards, although there will also be new nurses, psychologists, social workers, parole officers and support staff.
- The crackdown on crime will also mean more crowding in cell blocks, at least until new prison construction is complete.
- Double-bunking in prisons has been running at about 10 per cent for years, but has crept up to around 13 per cent today and it will get worse, he said. "We anticipate, as we move through this process of building new units that were announced, that we will reach levels of up to 20, 30 per cent of double-bunking before those units are actually complete and give me some bed relief to move people back to single cells."

Head admitted that his $2.46-billion budget is going to be squeezed by a combination of a growing prison population and government-mandated spending freezes and saving requirements.

- Head said the Harper government's truth-in-sentencing law limiting credit for pre-trial detention, passed in the fall of 2009, has helped push the prison population up by about 400 people this year.

HARPER'S JUDGES

A newly appointed judge's speedy transition from active politics to the bench is raising questions about politicization of the judiciary under Stephen Harper.

Brian Abrams was among a raft of judicial appointments announced last Friday by the Harper government.

He was named to the family division of Ontario's Superior Court of Justice — less than two months after resigning as the federal Conservative candidate in Kingston.

In total, the Liberals maintain the Harper government has appointed 39 judges with Tory ties since the 2008 election.

Foes join to fete newborn

► Israeli woman was afraid to visit Palestinian area, let alone give birth there ► But 'they treated me very nicely, like a member of the family'

An Israeli woman has given birth in a Palestinian hospital, an extremely rare occurrence that won her flowers and a handwritten note from the Palestinian president.

Nisreen Chayedri, 30, who grew up Jewish but converted to Islam, says she was shopping in the West Bank town of Ramallah on Wednesday when she went into labour. Her husband, an Arab citizen of Israel, rushed her to the nearest hospital, where she delivered a baby boy.

Israel bars its Jewish citizens from visiting Palestinian areas because of security concerns. Its Arab citizens may visit those areas, though few use the Palestinian medical system, which is far less developed than the Israeli one. In contrast, Palestinians often seek treatment at more advanced Israeli hospitals for specialized procedures.

The arrival of Chayedri — who speaks only Hebrew and lives in northern Israel — caused a stir at the hospital, though she says she got VIP treatment. A Hebrew-speaking doctor translated for her as she delivered a baby boy, weighing 2.3 kilograms. Chayedri and her husband named the boy Omri, a name used by both Jews and Arabs.

► Palestinian President Mahmoud Abbas caught wind of the birth and ordered the hospital not to charge her, said Health Minister Fathi Abu Mughli. He also sent flowers and a handwritten card.

Chayedri said she was scared to be in the Palestinian territories for the first time, but was impressed with the hospital. "They treated me very nicely, like a member of the family," she said.

Ramallah's mayor and other local officials visited her in the hospital, she said.

Abu Mughli said the hospital treats patients regardless of religion or nationality and that he hoped the birth would help Israelis and Palestinians build "normal relations that would allow many Israeli patients to come to Palestinian hospitals."

Ehud Barak: Israel's broken politician?

A decade ago, Ehud Barak was a popular Israeli prime minister and war hero on the verge of making historic peace with Syria and the Palestinians. Today, he is widely reviled as the country's most despised leader.

In his current post of defence minister, Barak has created enemies everywhere and is blamed for everything from the collapse of peace talks with the Palestinians to the disintegration of the Labour Party and infighting in the military.

Barak "will not rest until everything is destroyed," wrote newspaper columnist Ben Caspit, who once co-authored a glowing biography about Barak and his heroic military exploits. He now accuses Barak of turning the Israeli military "into something between a viper's nest and a cuckoo's nest."

Seen as a lone centrist in a coalition dominated by headline ideologues, Barak has played a key role in the government, projecting moderation and responsibility to the general public and to the international community. In particular, he still serves as the prime minister's point man to the United States.

But in recent months, Barak has increasingly become a liability for Prime Minister Benjamin Netanyahu.

With the Israeli media lambasting him almost daily and the public angry over his political machinations, his days in politics could be numbered.

No trial for police-dog handler

It's looking less likely that an Alberta man who used the courts to have an Edmonton police dog handler charged with aggravated assault will see the case come to trial.

The Crown elected to stay the charge against Sgt. Bruce Edwards, saying the officer was acting within "police parameters" when he shot Kirk Steele four times after the fleeing man stabbed his dog Wizzard with a steak knife. Prosecutors said there wasn't a reasonable likelihood of conviction.

"To the heart of it ... did he act within police parameters when he used lethal force? The Crown's opinion is he did, based on the evidence that was presented," said Alberta Justice spokesman Josh Stewart. THE CANADIAN PRESS

Private action

► Steele launched the private prosecution after a judge acquitted him of two charges stemming from the incident in 2006. The judge ruled that Edwards breached Steele's charter rights.

Strong loonie drives production offshore

Canadian firms are increasingly shifting their production offshore in response to the pressures of globalization and the strong loonie, Export Development Canada says.

A new study from the Crown corporation shows sales from foreign affiliates of Canadian firms grew by more than twice the rate of exports from firms inside Canada between the years 2000 and 2008.

Exports from foreign affiliates expanded from $367 billion in 2000 to $508 billion in 2008.

During the same period, the loonie moved from the low 60-cent levels early in the decade to well above parity with the U.S. dollar during the 2008 commodity boom.

Although comparable data is only available to 2008, the study's author Jean-Francois Lamoureux says the trend has likely accelerated since the economic downturn. If up-to-date data were available, it would show that sales from foreign affiliates are now on par with total exports originating from inside Canada, he said.

"This is showing Canadian companies are adapting to the realities of global trade today," Lamoureux explained.

MARCIO JOSE SANCHEZ/THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

► A Google employee demonstrates the speak2tweet program at Google headquarters in California.

Talks have valued Twitter at approximately $8B to $10B US

Google and Facebook are both sniffing around Twitter with an eye to buying the social networking service.

Sources tell the Wall Street Journal that the talks have valued Twitter at between $8 billion and $10 billion US.

The same sources say Twitter had revenue of $45 million in 2010, but lost money as it hired and invested in data centres.

Investors have shown keen interest in social networking services.

Twitter has had a popular role in organizing international political protest as in the recent uprising in Egypt and last year's protests in Iran.

Some have called the site "the medium of the movement." In some situations, it has been a source for news updates.

It seems governments have caught the Twitter bug, too.

In Canada, Calgary Mayor Naheed Nenshi tweeted updates about his campaign platform.

Yesterday, the U.S. ambassador to the United Nations hosted a global town hall at Twitter headquarters to talk foreign policy with users of the online messaging service.

Last month, daily coupon website Groupon raised $950 million in financing after reportedly turning down Google's offer to purchase it for $6 billion.

Twitter and Facebook declined to comment. Google did not immediately respond to messages seeking comment.

5 MINUTES WITH: BRUCE SELLERY

Business journalist Bruce Sellery was in Ottawa this week to talk about his new book, Moolala: Why Smart People Do Dumb Things With Their Money (And What You Can Do About It).

So, why do smart people do dumb things with their money?

There's no correlation between intelligence and rational behaviour, none, and we see that in lots of areas, like Eliot Spitzer — what was he thinking? People are the same way with money. I have a great business degree from a great university and did not learn one thing about personal finance at school.

People seem really reluctant to discuss their finances. Why is that?

It's a weird quirk of western culture. We don't talk about it and the thing that scares me most is that we're passing that on to our children. We need to start talking about it more openly and engaging young people in what they want and their plan to get it. My 12-year-old nephew blew my mind. He pulls out his goals list, 67 items. He wants to milk a poisonous snake, he wants to try pungent cheese, experience weightlessness, and discover an element.

All awesome, but except for the pungent cheeses, most of those have a pretty significant dollar sign attached. If you want to discover an element, you're probably doing a PhD. What does it take to get a PhD? Let's get on the Registered Education Savings Plan.

You grew up in a frugal family. Are there any cheap habits that you still can't shake?

I never let food spoil. People will tell me they had to throw out X and Y. And I'll say what do you mean? You couldn't make a stew? Did you taste it before you checked the best before date? That was a big trick in my mom's house: You tried the milk or the sour cream and if it was off, you looked at the best before date, but you wouldn't throw something out based on the best before date. But I've become much better. If I have a hole in my sock, I throw out the pair of socks. I would never have done that growing up.

Is there a luxury you won't do without?

I will not do without my PVR. It has changed my life completely and exponentially increased my TV viewing. And it's expensive. But I drive a 1997 Honda CRV.

Metro Minute at dive meet

Watch talented divers from across the province make a splash this weekend at the Nepean Sportplex (1701 Woodroffe Ave.) during the Dare To Dive And Be Different meet.

The Nepean Ottawa Diving Club will host close to 75 divers, boys and girls from eight to 18 years old, Saturday and Sunday. The NDOC's own competitive dive team, coached by Fernando Henderson, will also participate.

The competition, also known as the Capitol City Tier II Dive Meet, has its official opening at 9:30 a.m. Saturday. The public is welcome to come and watch all weekend. For more information, go online to www.nodc.ca. ● METRO

Yes, I'm sad. I think it takes away from the tradition in Ottawa and also if they had moved it over to Albion Road, I think people would have travelled to go to it so people could visit south Ottawa.

Amy Rorke

Yes, I'm very sad about it being cancelled because we don't get many rides that come to Ottawa and it's a time that we actually get to go on rides.

► Justin Bieber stars in the documentary Justin Bieber: Never Say Never, which shows the popstar's early childhood and concert footage all in 3-D.

Getting Bieber fever

- Richard Crouse and Mark Breslin debate Justin Bieber: Never Say Never
- Early footage of Canadian superstar give music documentary a heart

Richard Crouse: Mark, generally these kind of music biographies are simply made up of backstage footage and embarrassing childhood photos wedged in between the tunes, and this movie is kind of like that as well, but what really sold me on the film was the picture it painted of Bieber before he got famous.

Mark Breslin: I don't think either of us is the target demographic for the movie. I've had very little exposure to the Bieber phenomenon, so the movie was fresh to my eyes. Yes, I liked the footage of Bieber before he was famous, especially the bit of him playing competent drums on a chair at a very early age.

Plot synopsis

► Justin Bieber: Never Say Never is a 3-D story of a pop prodigy who mastered a drum kit before he was 10 years old and sold out Madison Square Garden when he was barely old

RC: To say we're not the target market is an understatement, like saying that Justin Bieber has a few female fans, but there's no denying that the kid has talent. The music in the concert sequences sounds like white noise to my ears, but in the early footage of him playing and singing on the streets of Stratford and drumming with a local band is pretty impressive. I thought the movie presented him as being less pre-packaged than other teen stars. What did you enough to drive. Using a mix of archival and concert footage, it follows Bieber from his humble beginnings in Stratford, Ont., to superstardom.

► Ratings:
Richard's: ●●●●
Mark's: ●●●½

think?

MB: Well, that's what they'd like us to think. There are a lot of references to how Bieber achieved his success without the Disney or Nickelodeon machines, and that's true. He is the product of some grass roots push, and I found the footage of that very interesting. But when his manager — who is more likable than most — calls him the "underdog" I call that spin. Or even more proof that the Internet has created a new business model. And what did you think of the 3-D?

RC: The "underdog" reference was the most glaringly disingenuous thing in the movie. Anyone selling out Madison Square Garden in under half-an-hour is not an underdog — anything but. If anything, he is as you say, a new kind of business model — fame by YouTube. How 21st Century. Makes the American Idol format seem weathered and tired. As for the 3-D, it works in the concert sequences, less so in the documentary sequences but the little girls will love how Bieber seems to jump off the screen.

MB: Jump off the screen indeed! Scary — I really didn't need the moppet in my lap!

Not enough action to carry Eagle

The Eagle

Genre: Action

Director: Kevin Macdonald
Stars: Channing Tatum, Jamie Bell, Donald Sutherland

Kevin Macdonald's The Eagle isn't a particularly bad movie, it's just confused and flawed. The Touching The Void director can't decide if he's making a handsome historical epic or a sweaty action thriller and ends up with a muddled mixture that won't satisfy the audience for either genre.

The dependably bland Channing Tatum plays a young Roman soldier who ventures into the wilds of Roman-occupied Britain to honour his father's memory by recapturing his lost legion's golden eagle statue. An English slave (Jamie Bell) accompanies him and their relationship is stretched and flipped throughout the journey.

The dynamic between the two central characters is intriguing, but Tatum boasts about as much charisma and acting ability as a piece of petrified wood with pectoral implants, and Bell seems bored by his co-star. Thanks to miscasting and confused writing, the action sequences work better than the character scenes and there isn't nearly enough action to carry the film. With a stronger lead and tighter pacing, The Eagle could have been interesting. Instead, it's merely frustrating with moments that suggest what could have been.

● PHIL BROWN

From Prada To Nada

Genre: Comedy

Director: Angel Gracia
Stars: Camilla Belle, Alexa Vega, Adriana Barraza

From Prada To Nada is a Beverly Hills update of Jane Austin's Sense And Sensibility in the Clueless vein, but without the sense of invention or the strong character comedy. The film follows two rich young Latino sisters whose father suddenly dies and leaves them penniless, forcing them to move to a poor neighbourhood and learn how to appreciate the simple pleasures of life. The message is sweet, but it's hardly original.

● PHIL BROWN

Gnomeo &amp; Juliet

Genre: Animation

Director: Kelly Asbury

Stars: James McAvoy, Emily Blunt

Shakespeare gets a 3-D animated makeover in Gnomeo & Juliet, a wacky retelling of the bard's most famous play about two star-crossed lovers who were not meant to fall in love. In this case, the suitors are clay garden gnomes from warring lawns. It's a thin premise likely originated from the novelty title alone but the film's light zaniness actually plays well on-screen. Clever gags and wordplay carry the film.

● STEVE GOW

Just Go With It

Genre: Comedy

Director: Dennis Dugan

Stars: Jennifer Aniston, Adam Sandler, Nicole Kidman

The dark clouds hovering over Jennifer Aniston and Adam Sandler's careers may have lifted at least temporarily thanks to this sweetly funny, fetching and family friendly rom-com about lying. Sandler's a plastic surgeon who spins a ruse to win a woman that is so daring that it takes his assistant (Aniston), her children and his best friend to make it work. The actors playing Aniston's kids are cute too.

● ANNE BRODIE

Biutiful

Genre: Drama

Director: Alejandro González Iñárritu

Stars: Javier Bardem, Maricel Alvarez, Guillermo Estrella

Writer/director Alejandro González Iñárritu departs from his usual multi-character epics to focus on a single man (Javier Bardem) struggling to come to terms with his low-level criminal existence and set things right with his children before succumbing to cancer. Iñárritu transforms the material into a starkly realistic character study with fleeting moments of emotionally-driven surrealism.

Making art in Rio's garbage dumps

► Lucy Walker's documentary develops a troubling portrait of Brazil as a country divided along economic lines

SCENE@METRONews.CA

"I wanted to make a movie about art, but I didn't know how," says Lucy Walker when recalling the genesis of her new film Waste Land, which is a nominee for this year's Best Documentary Oscar award.

"I had been thinking of this amazing Spanish film called The Quince Tree Sun, and the idea it had to trace a single painting through every step of the process. I loved that."

Walker's film isn't about a single painting, but rather an ambitious project she developed with the Brazilian artist Vik Munoz.

The plan: To go to the world's largest garbage dump in Rio de Janeiro and create a series of portraits of its employees out of the very trash piled therein.

As Munoz grows closer to the workers, they become collaborators, and in turn, begin to see themselves not only as subjects but artists in their own right. "You worry constantly about the impact that you're having on these other lives," says Walker. "I think that it was part of Vik's process to work through those issues. And I don't think there any easy answers."

Indeed, Waste Land is a troubling film, especially in the portrait it creates of Brazil as a country brutally divided along economic lines.

"It wasn't until I got to Rio until I realized how perfect a backdrop it was, because the extremes and wealth of poverty are so starkly juxtaposed."

► Lucy Walker's film, Waste Land, has earned an Oscar nomination for Best Documentary.

Sci-fi meets teen drama

► I Am Number Four based on successful novel ► But director started adaptation before book's publication
► Saw potential for a 'good old-fashioned' genre film

SCENE@METRONWS.CA

In a manner reminiscent of popular blockbusters from the 1980s, I Am Number Four combines sci-fi action spectacle with teen drama.

Director DJ Caruso (Disturbia) is not only aware of these similarities, but actually cultivated them. "I have five kids and I've been trying for years to make a good old-fashioned Amblin film like The Goonies," Caruso told Metro.

"When I got this script I immediately felt like it was the one. I loved the way it combined action and science fiction with the story of a kid who realizes that who he wants to become and who he can become are two different people. That seemed like a simple, relatable story that would be perfect to hang a genre movie on."

The film is about a teen who seems like everyone else, except that he's secretly one of the last members of an extinct alien race that is slowly being picked off by reptilian assassins.

Though based on a successful novel, Caruso surprisingly started his adaptation before the source material had even been published.

"When I read the manuscript it still had typos and red writing in the margins," recalled the director.

"But it was liberating because unlike huge franchises like Twilight or Harry Potter, there were no preconceived notions of what the movie would be. No one could get mad with me because they don't know what to expect."

Caruso was also lucky enough to have the benefit of launching a franchise ► Reptilian assassins pick off the last members of an extinct alien race in I Am Number Four.

with two seasoned blockbuster veterans serving as creative producers: Steven Spielberg and Michael Bay.

"Steven was very involved in developing the script, and then Michael helped me with the visual effects in post," said Caruso. "I couldn't have done it without them because this was new territory for me."

Warm up from the harsh Canadian winter with a cold Canadian winter beer.

(Do not question Irish logic.)

Canadians can weather the winter like nobody else, but that doesn't mean you don't need warming up once in a while. Cozy up to our delicious new Winter Menu and pair your meal with a great Canadian beer from our featured selection.

► Grammy watch: Will Eminem finally earn top honours on Music's Biggest Night on Sunday?

The Eminem Show 2011?

The Grammy Awards are in danger of turning into Eminem's own personal Groundhog Day.

It was undoubtedly his year in 2001.

He had created a twisted masterpiece with his sophomore debut, the equal-opportunity offender The Marshall Mathers LP, which did everything the best rock 'n' roll is supposed to do: electrify the youth, delight the critics, offend the parents, outrage society — only it was a rap album.

And yet, when it came to announce album of the year, the trophy went to ... Steely Dan (10 points if you remember the title of THAT one).

In 2003, he had a strong shot at a Grammy with another top-selling, critically acclaimed CD, The Eminem Show.

And it seemed as if the Recording Academy might finally give Eminem his due coronation.

But a jazzy songbird named Norah Jones enchanted them, and he went home without the prestigious award once again.

Now, it's a new decade and a new Eminem.

He's still got the radioactive tongue, but he's endured a painful drug addiction, personal tragedy and an artistic lapse, yet overcome all of them to create Recovery, an album that riveted millions and earned him a leading 10 Grammy nominations.

He's not only nominated for album, but also for record and song of the year for Love the Way You Lie with Rihanna.

It's looking like an Eminem coronation — but looks can be deceiving, and the Grammys have proven time and time again that things aren't always what they seem ... as we explain.

SONG OF THE YEAR (songwriters)

Nominees: Beg Steal or Borrow, Ray LaMontagne, songwriter (Ray LaMontagne and the Pariah Dogs); (Expletive) You, Brody Brown, Cee Lo Green, Ari Levine, Philip Lawrence and Bruno Mars, songwriters (Cee Lo Green); The House That Built Me, Tom Douglas and Allen Shamblin, songwriters (Miranda Lambert); Love the Way You Lie, Alexander Grant, Skylar Grey and Marshall Mathers, songwriters (Eminem, pictured, featuring Rihanna); Need You Now, Dave Haywood, Josh Kear, Charles Kelley and Hillary Scott, songwriters (Lady Antebellum).

Analysis: OK, now here's where we think Eminem will catch a break. (Expletive) You is undeniably catchy with its groove and clever with its wit, but telling a story through song? Well, you cannot beat Eminem's twisted love song for that, which weaves a disturbing, dysfunctional and ultimately haunting story arc in brilliant fashion.

RECORD OF THE YEAR

Nominees: Nothin' on You, B.o.B featuring Bruno Mars; Love the Way You Lie, Eminem featuring Rihanna; (Expletive) You, Cee Lo Green, pictured; Empire State of Mind, Jay-Z and Alicia Keys; Need You Now, Lady Antebellum.

Analysis: The real race is between Eminem's haunting Love the Way You Lie and Cee Lo's "Glee"-fully foul (Expletive) You. We think the Grammys will try and show they're not the Grannys — as well as honour what frankly was the best record of the year — with (Expletive) You.

ETHAN MILLER/GETTY IMAGES

ALBUM OF THE YEAR

Nominees: The Suburbs, Arcade Fire; Recovery, Eminem; Need You Now, Lady Antebellum; The Fame Monster, Lady Gaga, pictured; Teenage Dream, Katy Perry.

Analysis: This is Eminem's moment. His Recovery was 2010's bestselling album, and it represented a critical rebirth and triumph: He's the obvious choice for album of the year ... but the Grammys rarely pick the obvious choice. Which brings us to Arcade Fire, the rock band that reached a mainstream milestone this year with The Suburbs and had critics swooning.

NEW ARTIST

Nominees: Justin Bieber, Drake, Florence & The Machine, Mumford & Sons, Esperanza Spalding.

Analysis: Usually the pop phenomenon, though a multiplatform-selling fan favourite, never wins in this category. Britney Spears, Backstreet Boys and the Jonas Brothers are perfect examples. But Christina Aguilera won in 2000, and like Aguilera (pre-Bionic), there's something deeper with Bieber than your typically teen superstar.

Sunset's cast glows

► Jackson and Jones team up for bare bones two-man TV movie

HBO, DAWN JONES/THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

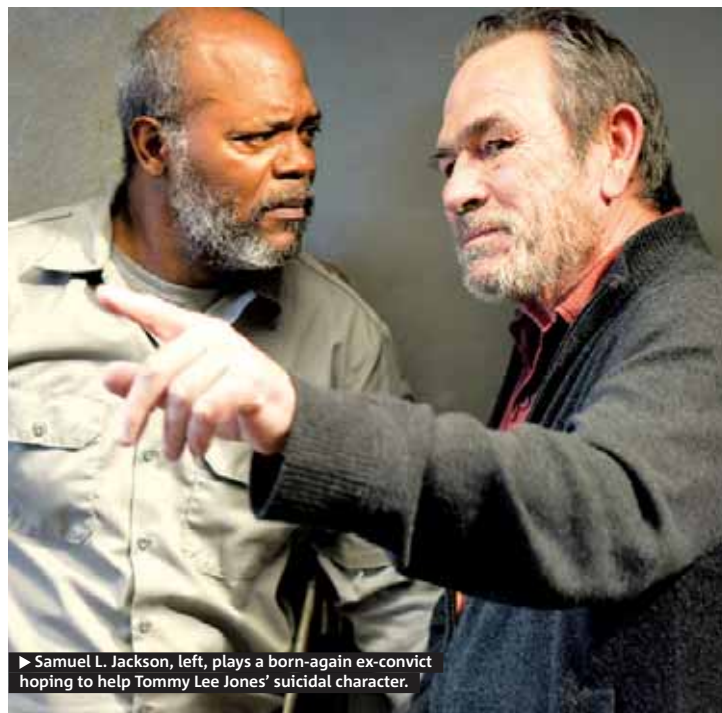

A college professor distraught about his life and the state of the world hurls himself in front of a subway train. He is rescued by a born-again ex-convict.

We don't witness this event. The Sunset Limited takes place wholly in the rescuer's one-room tenement apartment, where he has brought the would-be suicide to try convincing him that his life has value and is worth holding onto.

Between this pair of lonely strangers, a spirited—in many ways—debate ensues.

The Sunset Limited stars Tommy Lee Jones as the tormented atheist (labeled, simply, White) who has abandoned all hope for mankind and “the primacy of the intellect,” and Samuel L. Jackson as a killer-turned-believer (dubbed Black) who claims he doesn't know anything that's not straight from the Bible.

Black wants to argue

White out of making another suicide attempt. White, though repeatedly starting for the door, sticks around to make his own bleak case and defy the other man's hard-won faith.

Premiering Saturday at 9 p.m. EST on HBO, The Sunset Limited is gripping, disturbing and, at times, mordantly funny.

The Sunset Limited is remarkably animated for such a scaled-down film, propelled by two fine performances and drawn from the 2006 play of the same name by Cormac McCarthy, Pulitzer-prize-winning author of such novels as Blood Meridian, All the Pretty Horses and No Country for Old Men, which became a hit 2007 Oscar winner in which Jones starred.

“I read the play some time ago and I always liked it, was fascinated by it,” says Jones during a recent joint interview with Jackson at HBO offices. “I happened to run into Cormac one day in Santa Fe, and I got around to telling him that I thought it would be a good idea to make a film of it. And he agreed with me.”

The film, though set in New York City's Harlem, was made in Santa Fe, N.M., in fall 2009, with Jones executive producer as well as director.

Chase's Community

► Chevy playing confused senior citizen who returns to college ► Community airs on NBC

SCENE@METRONWS.CA

METRO WORLD NEWS IN LOS ANGELES

After making a splash in the first season of Saturday Night Live, comic star Chevy Chase left television to launch a successful movie career, at one point becoming one of the highest paid actors in Hollywood.

He's also very popular in Europe, he insists. "Do you know I'm the Jerry Lewis of Sweden? It's true," Chase tells Metro.

Now, Chase is back on the small screen each week with Community, playing an out-to-lunch senior citizen returning to college. He sat down with Metro to talk about returning to TV, the legacy of Saturday Night Live and keeping up with movies.

What was it about Commu-

► Chevy Chase

nity that made you want to sign up?

It was totally the writing of the (first episode). Otherwise, I would never have considered a sitcom.

But it really made me laugh out loud, and I had never done anything like a sitcom. So I figured it's just a half-hour show — or 24 minutes — so it should be very easy. Boy was I wrong (laughs).

Why do you think the show has struck such a chord with audiences internationally?

I guess the cast. It's a terrific cast, and then of course, there's me, a movie star (laughs). I've been around so long that it certainly doesn't hurt to know a name that you've seen. I'm not really bragging — I'm just saying that I'm sure that doesn't hurt. I think if anything, the two pretty girls probably help sell the show as much as anything else.

Do you still watch Saturday Night Live?

I don't watch it a lot anymore, but when I'm in New York sometimes I go. I've seen it over the years and it's amazing because I started it and that Weekend Update thing was just me and a desk.

Now it's like its own show. It doesn't surprise me that that kind of variety live show is going to last for a long time because it's known so well at this point, and all you have to do is have a lot of writers writing sketches.

There are going to be bad shows and good shows, but it's got its own built-in audience almost now.

What's the last comedy movie that you saw that you really liked?

I saw Harold (Ramis') — what is it, Year One? It didn't get good reviews and it didn't do well, but I laughed a lot. I love Harold, so whatever he does, I laugh at.

Have you seen The Hangover?

No, I haven't seen it. As a matter of fact, of the Top 40 movies that are out now, I haven't seen one. I mean, I vote (as a member of the Academy). I'll see them all, but it may be on my TV from a CD. When I can, I get to a movie theatre with my wife and kids or whatever, but I just don't have the opportunity that much.

DC keeping Flashpoint under wraps

► The company is only offering hints and teasers about the 15 separate miniseries, one-shot issues and more

Anything can change in a flash.

Readers of DC Comics The Flash series are about to find that out as the publisher gradually unveils Flashpoint, a story arc that features 15 separate miniseries, a series of one-shot issues and more that will range from Gotham to around the world and bring the Scarlet Speedster to the forefront of DC.

The company is keeping mum about it all, offering a few hints and teasers that show some of its major characters — Batman among them — in similar costumes but with subtle yet direct differences.

The series is written by Geoff Johns, DC's chief creative officer.

A preview is offered in the new edition of The Flash: The Dastardly Deaths of the Rogues, which Johns wrote and Francis Manupaul illustrated. It's been released in comic shops and will be in book stores next week.

It details Barry Allen's return to the hustle and bustle of Central City, his wife Iris and his job as a forensics investigator. But the story pivots an unusual hinge: Allen, it seems, will kill a villain, and law enforcement from the 25th century is out for him.

How it plays into Flashpoint is a secret DC will not reveal, but Manupaul has breathed new life into the Scarlet Speedster, with art that is both vibrant and evocative of the velocity that has always surrounded The Flash.

The 31-year-old Toronto resident said it's been more than a joyride illustrating the ongoing series.

"I've actually been a longtime Flash fan since high school and the very first time I talked to (DC co-publisher Dan DiDio) about working with DC, one of the very first projects that I asked for was The Flash," said Manupaul, who got to draw the character when Johns brought Flash back last year and the new series started.

The partnership has blossomed.

"It's better to work with writers that you admire and that you mesh with. The story is ultimately what is important," Manupaul said. "Through our experience working on Adventure Comics, the collaboration worked out really well. And when Geoff came back to The Flash, he brought me along with him." THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Divorce fallout: One baby boy

► Sources claim Simpson is seeking out primary custody of son, Bronx

Ashlee Simpson has filed for divorce from husband Pete Wentz after two and a half years of marriage, according to People magazine.

"After careful consideration, we have made the difficult decision to file for divorce," the couple said in a statement.

"We remain friends and deeply committed and loving parents to our son, Bronx, whose happiness and well-being remains our No. 1 priority."

Simpson is reportedly seeking primary physical custody of their son.

"Eva and Eduardo were kissing and cuddling and looked very romantic," a source says of the pair's behaviour at a South Beach, Fla., Super Bowl viewing party.

And the tryst seems to be doing wonders for the Desperate Housewives star.

"During the past few weeks, Eva seems to have come alive again," a source says.

"She is usually fun, flirty and a blast to be around. That side of her came back after a few months of distress."

Name of baby revealed?

While Penelope Cruz and Javier Bardem have been keeping details on their new baby under wraps, a friend may have spilled the beans on the boy's name.

"I know what you want, and you don't understand why they don't come running to show off the baby and say, 'Look, here's Leo,'"

Spanish director Santiago Segura said while discussing the couple with reporters, according to People. When reporters asked if the baby's name was in fact Leo, Segura said, "Yeah, Leo. I think so. That's what I think I heard. But they haven't said anything." ● METRO

Chocolate Prices

Cupid got off easy, but spikes in cocoa bean and sugar prices may have the Easter bunny digging deeper into your pocket.

Prices likely will rise, possibly by as much as five per cent, said Marcia Mogelonsky, global food analyst for Mintel.

One reason for the increase, is political turbulence in Ivory Coast, the world's largest producer of cocoa beans, that led to a one-month ban on exports.

In many cultures, rosemary has a long history as an aphrodisiac, an herb with the power to keep fidelity and love strong.

So why not tap that history to grow a little romance of your own on Valentine's Day? This three-course meal isn't speedy, but the effort will win you the admiration of your love.

Cream of Cauliflower and Rosemary Soup

Preparation:

- In saucepan, melt butter over medium-high; add shallot and rosemary and sauté until shallot is tender, 3 to 4 minutes. Add flour and stir to coat. Cook for 1 minute, whisk in milk and cream.

- Add cauliflower, salt and pepper. Cook, stirring frequently, until cauliflower is very soft and mixture has thickened.

- Using an immersion blender or working in batches in a regular blender, puree mixture until very smooth. Adjust seasoning with additional salt and pepper, if needed. Drizzle with rosemary oil.

Rosemary Seared Tenderloin with Honeyed Sweet Potato and Blue Cheese Green Beans

Preparation:

- Prick sweet potato all over with a fork. Microwave on High for 5 to 6 minutes or until completely tender. Let cool slightly. Peel and mash potato in small bowl. Stir in butter, honey, salt and pepper. Cover and keep warm.

- Beef Tenderloin: Rub salt and rosemary all over the steaks. In a large oven-safe skillet heat butter and oil over medium-high. Sear steaks on each side until well-browned, 2 to 3 minutes per side. Place skillet in 350 F (180C) oven and cook until meat thermometer inserted in centre reaches 125 F (52 C). Remove from oven, tent with foil and let rest for 10 minutes.

- Blue Cheese Green Beans: Meanwhile, bring small saucepan of water to boil. Add beans and cover. Boil until bright green and just tender, about 3 minutes. Drain beans, then transfer to a bowl. Add blue cheese, salt and pepper; toss to combine. Sprinkle with almonds.

Celebrate love with a little Ménage à Trois...

PETER ROCKWELL

While most thoughts will turn to flowers and chocolates this weekend before Valentine's Day, my mind is on a ménage à trois. Before you start emailing, I mean the wine — not the other thing.

Made in California by the Folie à Deux Winery, the idea behind the cheeky name is that the Ménage à Trois wines are created from a trio of grape varieties or, in the case of the chardonnay, the same grape from three regions in the state.

The 2009 Ménage à Trois Red ($17.95 - $19.99) is made with a triple blend of zinfandel, merlot and cabernet sauvignon.

Rich and ripe with just a kiss of residual sugar, it makes for a great all-purpose dinner wine as well as a mouth-filling on-its-own sipper perfect for a candle lit tête à tête.

Fisher gone, more moves expected

► Trading forward for picks may be just the start as rebuilding begins

It looks like rebuilding plans are underway for the Ottawa Senators.

The struggling team sent forward Mike Fisher to Nashville on Thursday in exchange for the Predators' first-round pick this year and a conditional pick in next year's NHL entry draft.

Senators general manager Bryan Murray expects more changes to be made ahead of the Feb. 28 trade deadline.

"We have a plan in place and an idea that we want to restructure the hockey team to again be a competitive club," Murray said on a conference call.

Fisher, 30, has played 675 career NHL games — all with the Senators. He has recorded 24 points (14 goals, 10 assists) and 33 penalty minutes in 55 games this season.

It has been a disastrous season for the Senators, who are winless in 11 games and sit last in the Northeast Division with 42 points.

"We know that we have to make some changes," Murray said. "When we perform like we did this year, a variety of things have to happen."

Nashville, meanwhile, is gearing up for a playoff run. The Predators are just five points behind first-place Detroit in the Central Division.

Fisher is married to music star Carrie Underwood, who has a home in

The conditions

The conditional pick in the trade will be Nashville's third-round selection if the Predators win one round in the post-season this year. The pick becomes a second-round selection in 2012 if Nashville wins two rounds or more.

Nashville. The couple married last summer in Georgia.

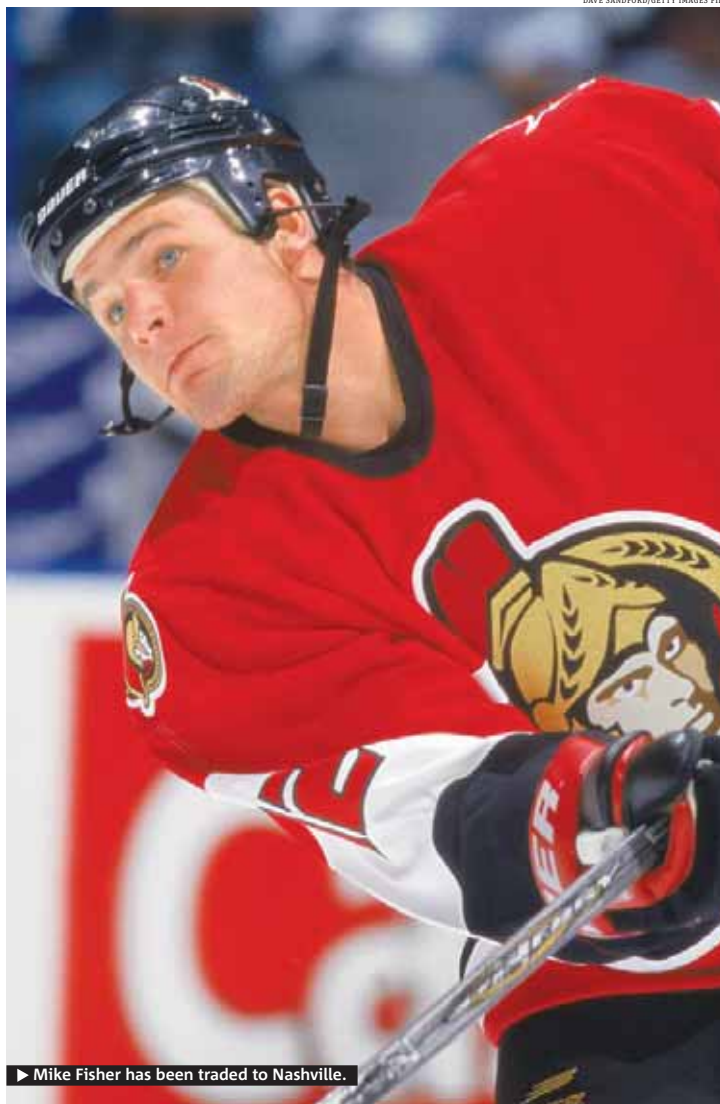

"I'm sure there was a lot of places and a lot of teams that would've coveted Mike," Nashville general manager David Poile said on a conference call. "But on the surface the fit for Nashville with his wife, certainly we're hoping is going to be an attractive situation for Mike and his wife."

The Predators hope to have his work visa completed Friday so he can be in the lineup Saturday night against Colorado.

Fisher said news of the trade was a bit of a shock that he still was trying to process, but he's excited about joining the Predators.

"They're a very good team, and it'll be kind of like going home for me," Fisher said on the Senators' website. "I'm sure my wife won't be disappointed, either. But I think it's a great place for me and family and everything."

Longtime assistant Phil Johnson also resigned, surprising even Sloan during their post-game chat Wednesday with general manager Kevin O'Connor.

Send a KISS

Show some love! Send a note to somebody special at kiss@metronews.ca

Sam, you are an amazing boyfriend I could ever ask for! Rough patches what makes us stronger! I am so grateful to have you in my life! Love always
YOUR PRETTY MALINE XO

Glenn..You're the star to my burst. My Reese to my cup. The hersey to my kiss. My peanut butter to my jam. Happy 1st V-Day Babe!!
ILU!! NINA

Ms.Masterson I love you with all my heart and my love will never go away because we share the love of science. Be my valentine.

My dearest Norman, I don't know how to express just how much you mean to me. I fall more in love with you every day and I can't imagine my life without you in it.
ALL MY LOVE TRI <3

Today's horoscope

♈ Aries March 21-April 20 You must figure out a money or business problem of some sort today. Don't let anyone talk you into accepting less than you are entitled to.

♉ Taurus April 21-May 21 You have all the energy you need but that is not an excuse, still less an invitation, to take too many risks. If you try too hard, your efforts to impress someone in a position of power could backfire.

♊ Gemini May 22-June 21 An unspoken fear has been gnawing away at you for ages and it's about time that you dealt with it once and for all. If you face up to it today, it will most likely turn out to be nothing at all. Be brave. Be bold.

♋ Cancer June 22-July 22 You must let rivals know that you are not the sort of person who cracks under pressure. Today's cosmic set-up will give you zero tolerance when it comes to bossy people.

♌ Leo July 23-Aug. 23 Forget about trying to impress employers and other authority figures with boasts about all the great things you are going to do in the future and do something right now.

♍ Virgo Aug. 24-Sept. 22 You want nothing more than to be left alone at the moment and if other people know what's good for them, they will give you plenty of time and space. If they don't know what's good for them, they'll soon learn!

♎ Libra Sept. 23-Oct. 23 Why are you so obsessive about something, or someone, that has nothing to do with you? Whatever the reason, you need to break the habit today because it is taking too much of your emotional energy.

♏ Scorpio Oct. 24-Nov. 22 A relationship has reached a turning point and either today or over the weekend you will have to decide whether to take it in a new direction or end it.

♐ Sagittarius Nov. 23-Dec. 21 Focus on the big picture and let other people take care of the little things, even though you could handle them yourself. Time is precious, and your time is better spent on strategic planning.

♑ Capricorn Dec. 22-Jan. 20 Sometimes, you are too cautious. Today, you will go to the other extreme and do something that is a bit radical. Imagine what the consequences might be. Then do it anyway.

♒ Aquarius Jan. 21-Feb. 18 If you don't come to grips with a situation soon it will take on a life of its own and get beyond your control. You've got to forget about the past and create a new future for yourself.

♓ Pisces Feb. 19-March 20 Something will happen today that will make you angry with people in positions of power. Yes, they are taking liberties, and yes, they need to be made aware that it's not right.
